SEOUL, KOREA, SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1951

WISE AND OTHERWISE

On July 1st, on which the American Immigration Bill including the anti-Japanese clause went into force, a demonstration was to be held by about 20,000 Japanese students in Tokyo. We wonder whether it exactly came off as scheduled. If it did, we all hope it was not done, in any way, in imitation of those Chinese students who were once rallied for their apparently similar action in protest against the 21 Demands.

Americans lynching their black compatriots is, no doubt, an inhuman usage well-known to the whole world. In their recent unsuccessful attempt of applying this 'not so civilized' manner of revenge to some Japanese residents, they tarred and feathered them first, we hear. Must we understand that lynching became legalized if only the unfortunate sufferer, yellow or even white, is forced to put on the appearance of a negro by being tarred?

As a report to the Japanese Exclusion from the American soil, the Island Empire boycotted the goods of its sister-nation on the other side of the Pacific, which called out the commensurate return in kind. The boycotting on one side thus being perfectly set-off by another on the other side, the Japanese exclusion still remains to be entered on the credit side for the Japanese, owing to the American sagacity.

The protest of the self-styled All-Korea Public Functionaries' Conference, regarding the objectionable American Immigration Law, which is forwarded to the American Consul-general through the governmental channel, was signed by four, one Korean and three Japanese, members of the executive-committee of conference. Does it mean that the protest is a Korean one to the extent of 25 percent? Considering the way in which all this rotten thing came about, one may declare that that percentage dwindles to zero! The one Korean named Li Chin-ho is an 'ex-governor' and is very likely to need some job.
